

Are Your Energy Costs Out of Control?

Truflo control panel

Truflo is the Most Economical and Efficient Ventilation System Available.

When your average commercial kitchen exhaust system operates at 100% capacity for 12 to 18 hours per day, thousands of wasted energy dollars are blown out the roof! By reducing fan speed during idle cooking periods, the Spring Air Truflo semi-automatic variable speed hood controller saves you money on both fan energy and the ever increasing cost of your conditioned kitchen air.

Our Truflo system monitors and senses the heat produced by the appliances underneath the hood. Since the actual amount of high capacity cooking is done only during short periods of the day, the Truflo system can save you thousands of dollars by increasing exhaust automatically only when it is needed.

A programmable variable speed energy saving system

You have the ability to increase the volume to 100% at anytime. This override system runs for an adjustable timed period of usually 15 minutes and can also be activated from a small wireless remote control that can be hood mounted or carried in your pocket.

The Spring Air Trufluo variable speed hood controller not only saves you money on energy expenses but by demanding exhaust only when it is required, it can help extend the life of your equipment as well! Trufluo can be specified on new hoods or can be retrofitted on your existing hoods. Since the panel can be hood mounted or wall mounted, it allows you many convenient options on where to locate the panel and wireless remote unit.

Stop wasting energy and money today!

Spring Air will supply you with specifications, equipment drawings and operating costs for your commercial ventilation system that will meet all local and national codes, and of course your budget.
